What is concrete raising?

It's also known as grout injection, mud-jacking or slab-jacking. Concrete raising is the process of lifting and stabilizing concrete that has lost its soil base and is sinking.

- A series of holes about an inch in diameter are drilled into the concrete.
- A low or high mobility grout material is injected just below the slab to fill the voids and raise the concrete to a desired height.
- Drill holes are patched with cement upon completion.

What can concrete raising repair?

- Trip Hazards
- Correct Uneven Driveways, Sidewalks, Patios and Pool Decking
- Correct Drainage/Water Pooling Issues

Half the cost of replacement, concrete raising is a cost-effective alternative to help save your concrete surfaces.

Concrete replacement needed?

There are some circumstances in which concrete is beyond repair even by the BEST and unfortunately, needs replaced. Luckily, we have skilled professionals to help with all your replacement needs.

We can also assist with new projects! Extensions can be added to most concrete surfaces or we can help design and pour new concrete slabs.
